

You are invited to the K-12 Education Transformation Framework for a 'New Normal' Summit 28-30 June 2022 in Singapore

Building a holistic strategy for country-based digital transformation in schools

Digital education and the ability to deliver blended or fully online classes became critically important and gained significant traction across the globe as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic. To meet these challenges, global best practices for K-12 education have evolved. In line with this, the Asian Development Bank (ADB) and Microsoft jointly organized the K-12 Education Transformation Framework for a 'New Normal' Summit/Training workshop as part of a ground breaking cooperative project held in Singapore from Tuesday 28 to Thursday 30 June 2022.

Summit participants discussed a plan to achieve quality education for all using appropriate technologies and understand the benefits of collaborating with ADB and technology partners like Microsoft.

It aimed to provide policymakers and senior administrators from ADB developing member countries the opportunity to share and learn from each other and the panel of experts.

The focus of this summit/training workshop are on four key themes –

- Leadership and policy
- Teaching and learning
- Intelligent environments
- Student and school success elements of education transformation

Participants learned from schools in Singapore and experienced the implementation and technologies in the Microsoft Experience Centre. Finally, participants came together to discuss how they can better manage education transformation and where ADB and leading technology partners can better support them.
